Open World Delegates from Turkmenistan

Submitted by: Mellie Myer, Ashgabat Chair

A delegation of young women entrepreneurs from Turkmenistan visited Albuquerque March 4-11, 2017. They were hosted by Albuquerque Sister Cities Foundation. Funded by the U.S. Congress through Open World Leadership Center, the group of five businesswomen, their facilitator from the U.S. Embassy in Ashgabat, and a translator were housed with host families and accompanied by ASCF members on an event-filled schedule.

The delegates were Liana Babasheva, director of a small business support enterprise; Mayym Japarova, owner and manager of a coffee shop and restaurant; Marina Delova, owner and designer of the only stained glass workshop in Turkmenistan; Sabina Ballyyeva, owner of a greenhouse-based herb and vegetable business; and Yazgul Yazberdiyeva, owner and designer of an interior design and drapery business.

Their visit began with a tram ride and trip to the Sandia Mountains with Nathan Young, followed by a reception at the home of Mellie Myer, Ashgabat Committee Chair. At the reception the delegates introduced themselves and described their businesses. Oguljan and Mellie made some welcoming remarks as did Gary Oppedahl, Economic Development Director for Albuquerque.

On Monday the delegates met with representatives of Senators Martin Heinrich and Tom Udall and Congresswoman Michelle Lujan-Grisham, and were guests of Women’s Economic Self-Sufficiency Team (WESST), a small business development organization that serves as a hub for entrepreneurship and small business development. Richard Buckler hosted the group at Sandia Laboratory Federal Credit Union and meetings with several savings and loan officials.

Tuesday began with a visit to two Corrales greenhouses, then lunch at a Corrales home of Rebecca Black and Greg Polk with guest speaker Grace Mestas, a stained glass artist, followed by a visit to the Culinary Arts Department at CNM with hosts Diane Burke, CNM Global Education Director, and Victoria Martinez, Culinary Department Academic Affairs Director. Thanks to Anne Callahan for dinner at her home and Alma and Tatiana Solis for tickets to Step Afrika! at Popejoy Hall that night. The delegates loved the evening of step dancing and cross-cultural storytelling.

Oguljan accompanied the women to the Biopark on Wednesday morning, then to meetings in the afternoon with Mayor Richard Berry, Commissioner Maggie Hart Stebbins and representatives of Bernalillo County Economic Development Department and New Mexico trade Alliance, and finally to dinner at Japanese Kitchen. On Thursday, the group was taken to the Albuquerque Museum for a brief history lesson, to ACCION New Mexico for a discussion about microloans, and to Explora! for some hands-on science fun. The delegation was then divided into smaller groups to visit businesses of special interest to each delegate.

Thanks to Alana McGrattan for hosting the women on a day-trip to Santa Fe to visit the International Folk Art Museum, Meow Wolf, and the Roundhouse during the legislative session on Friday. As a thanks to the host families and Sister Cities volunteers, the visitors, led by restaurant owner Mayhem Japarova, made a traditional Turkmen dinner of plov with chicken and salad at the home of Jenny and Dave Brody.

A special thanks to the following host families who generously offered hospitality to the visitors, the facilitator, Maysa Nepesova, and the interpreter Elmurad Kasym: Charlie and Susi Knoblauch, Carl and Terry Christensen, Amy Christensen and Mark Smith, Jenny and Dave Brodie, Oguljan and Nathan Young, and Chuck Larrabee.
